Little Ireland Here in Maine.

Interesting and Prosperous Colony of Celts in the Oxford Hills.

Among the mountains of Oxford County, there is a settlement which is a veritable "Little Ireland." Founded 90 years ago by a band of Irish laborers, it has since grown into a thriving community, and is now a well-known and prosperous colony of Celts in the Oxford Hills.

Although its language has changed somewhat, and its customs are different, the Irish people of this colony are still very much the same as their ancestors. They are a hardy, brave, and industrious people, and they have made a name for themselves in the world.

Sixty years ago or more, so the old men of the community tell, when the Grand Trunk road was being built from Portland to Berlin, some of the Irish laborers struck their way into the hills, and there they found a place to settle. They were a hardy, brave, and industrious people, and they had a lot of experience in the world.

Their record is a long and honorable one. They have been in the world for many years, and they have made a name for themselves. They have been in the world for many years, and they have made a name for themselves.

the "old sod," they live useful, prosperous and happy.

"Rocky" says he, when questioned about his home life. "Why, no, shure, I don't call it rocky! The land's just as God laid it out, and so it's good enough for me! Look now, will ye 'cross that mountain peak into Albany township? Did you ever see a finer view? I guess not! See, there's Kearsarge, Goose-Eye, an' Saddleback, an' beyond 'em all looms Mt. Washington, his whole flank white with snow! Fair, in the old country there's few such landscapes. An', more-over, there's no use to improve th' soil, for th' more ye improve it, th' higher th' rents go, while here, ye mind, we're independent an' workin' for our own good! And most of all I love the mountains, they're just as God made 'em, an' they shelter our farms!"

Michael Deegan is another prosperous farmer, a shining example of progressiveness. He has seven fine children and 200 acres of the best land under fine cultivation as any in the State. His father cleared the land, burned the stumps and pulled the roots out with three yokes of oxen. The patient ox is today an important factor in this colony. The Greenwood Irishmen work slowly, thereby accomplishing great results. In the last day of the year, they made a specialty of potatoes, raising them intensively by putting a decayed fish or a rotten twig into each hill for fertilizer, in Irish fashion. Before the Frost-killed potato crop lowered the value of the land, the Irishmen laid up a snug bank account from his product. Of late years oats and grain have paid them better; apples, too, they find profitable, and on many a farm can be seen flourishing orchards, with well trimmed fruit trees, which two generations ago were started from a few apple cuttings set on the newly cleared land. Thus have these "hustling" Irishmen made the wilderness blossom into some of the best farms in Maine.

WEST LOVELL.

A Boy to Brag of.

While West Lovell does not boast of a smarter boy than Clayton Tower of Sweden, it has one worthy of mention. Ralph McAllister, 14 years of age, has pumped the water for a herd of 15 cattle all winter, also assisting in their feed and care besides attending school only missing one day and then to attend the installation at Grange. Since school has closed a little over a month ago, with another pair of cattle to water he has yarded wood and bolts for dowl and spool stock driving 3 pairs of cattle at a time, loading and unloading himself and has made several trips to the village six miles away, putting on his bridle chains himself, besides doing other chores that fall to the lot of a farmer boy.

W. S. Fox has sold the two pair of oxen he has used in the woods.

Oris Lebaron and wife visited in Norway and Lewiston the first of the week.

The Estey organ for the Library hall arrived Friday and was placed in the hall.

Young Bowley and Arthur Fox went to Jackson, N. H. Wednesday returning the following day.

Drifting Apart.

"Drifting apart," heart from heart! In wintry weather A cold wind blows And drifts the snows In heaps together. But heart from heart "We are drifting apart."

"Drifting apart," heart from heart! They had from mine O generous giver! Removed forever! Remove the line That tells my heart "We are drifting apart."

My life once bright Has entered a night Of gloom and despair; But still that line Doth cruelly shine Here—everywhere, To wound my heart, "We are drifting apart."

"Drifting apart," heart from heart! Heart waves roll on, And hear from thee All thoughts of me, And the days agone; Thus heart from heart, "We are drifting apart."

West Bethel, Me., EDWIN RICHMOND BRIGGS.

Untroubled Fate.

So runs the world, our wisest words Are the words we fail to speak; The sweetest kiss is the one we miss, The sweetest grapes we seek, Hang just too high, and we long, and look, Ah! Destiny! often most unkind, Our highest purposes to foil; Our motives true, that spring unseen, Brighten at last, bring light and toll.

Often the brightest flower springs Companion to the thistle weed; In earnest hand there to expand, To smile amidst by kindred good.

Life's sweetest fruit hangs just too high, The sweetest hope we never grasp; And the heart and brain grow dull with pain, For the joy we may never clasp.

Our highest aims none ever know, Our dearest impulses are lost; And we strive our best, with a deep unrest, And a heart-sick life, and tempest-tossed.

SAVED MY LIFE

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

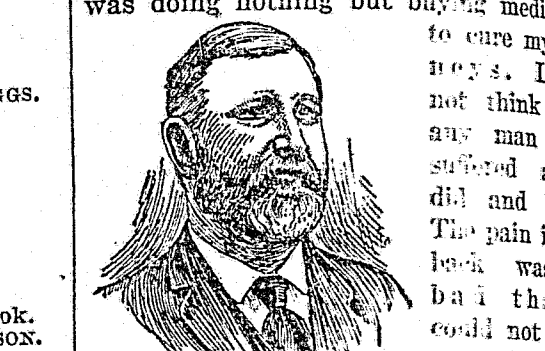

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. SPRAGUE, stock dealer of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two weeks I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I tried a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Our Winter Birds.

Our Waterford correspondent asks if many crows have been seen during the winter. We have seen but few this winter, which would seem rather strange as the winter has been so favorable for their safety. Could they have had the instinct to know what sort of winter were to have probably more would have remained.

The pine grosbeak, or swamp robin, as I think it is often called, has been plenty this winter. Two years ago they were said to be quite plenty. There are a few Canada jays that have been seen in this section this winter. So an occasional glimpse of the crow's wing is not necessarily a herald of spring.

Crisp winter weather is what we are experiencing in this section.

The leading members of the bar from all over the county were present. It will be noticed that Henry E. Hammond is a member. This is Mr. Hammond's 43d year as a member, he having served in that capacity since 1863.
This term of court will probably be one of the longest that has been held in Oxford county for several years. There are a large number of civil cases and also a large amount of criminal business. The criminal cases will be begun the first of next week.
There are some thirty divorce cases which will be set aside for a special day to be taken up all at one time, instead of being sandwiched with the other cases as has formerly been done.
Tuesday afternoon the case of Sylvester B. Woodman against Harriet B. Maxim, both of Hartford, was begun. Mr. Woodman came to Maine from the West two years ago last September and begun looking for a farm. Among others his attention was called to the farm belonging to Mrs. Maxim. He desired to purchase a large farm. He went to see Mrs. Maxim and inquired about the farm and she told him that she did not know the exact number of acres that it contained but thought about 160. This was not as large a place as Woodman desired so he did not make much talk with Mrs. Maxim. Later he received a letter from James Irish, a son-in-law of Mrs. Maxim, saying that she had found out that the farm contained over 200 acres. Mr. Woodman went to Mrs. Maxim's again and she told him that she had been told that the farm contained over 200 acres, 214 in all. When asked about the water supply he was told that the well was never known to go dry. Finally a trade was made and Mr. Woodman drew a check for $2300, the price which was agreed upon for the farm and some stock.
After three weeks the well went dry and Woodman was obliged to drive his cattle to a neighbor's. The next spring he discovered that his farm did not contain over 200 acres but after having surveyed found there was only 113 1/2 acres.
At 4 o'clock court adjourned this case until 9:30 Wednesday morning.
Memorial services in memory of Judge George A. Wilson were held at the court house at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Fitting tributes were paid to his memory by the members of the bar. The first speaker was James Wright of South Paris, who gave a sketch of his life and spoke highly of him as a man and as a lawyer. Other speakers were John P. Swasey of Canton, George D. Bisbee of Rumford Falls, followed by a fitting tribute by Judge A. M. Spear.
Wednesday forenoon this case was continued. Mr. Woodman was cross examined and then his wife, Mrs. Minnie H. Woodman, was called to the stand. Other witnesses were a Mr. Nelson, civil engineer, who had surveyed the farm for Mr. Woodman and found that the farm contained 113 1/2 acres; Wallace E. Russell, who had worked on the farm a few days and said that the well was dry when he was there.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Our Winter Birds.
Our Waterford correspondent asks if many crows have been seen during the winter. We have seen but few this winter, which would seem rather strange as the winter has been so favorable for their safety. Could they have had the instinct to know what winter was were to have probably more would have remained.
The pine grosbeak, or swamp robin, as I think it is often called, has not been plenty this winter. Two years ago they were said to be quite plenty. There are a few Canada jays that have been seen in this section this winter. So an occasional glimpse of the crows' wing is not necessarily a herald of spring.
Crisp winter weather is what we are experiencing in this section.

Letter to A. S. Kimball.

Dear Sir: The late president of the Croton River bank, at Brewster's, N. Y., built the finest house in all that region, in 1884, and painted it with lead-and-oil at a cost of $400—the house cost $31,000.

In 1887—three years—he repainted it with Devco at a cost of $325. In 1897 this paint was in good condition.

Lead-and-oil, $400, three years. Devco $350, ten years.

Yours truly,

"North Waterford, Feb. 1, 1890. This certifies that H. A. Jackson has paid to Oxford lodge, No. 61, I. O. O. F., of Waterford, jurisdiction of Maine, the sum of four dollars in full for all dues to Dec. 31, 1898. Seal, W. E. Douglass, secretary; Henry Sawin, secretary."

FRANK KIMBALL, Norway.
J. H. Brooks, South Paris.

I Want Office and Want it for Ten Years.

I want to be road commissioner of Norway. There was a time when I desired to be collector of taxes. But got over that. Four years as town treasurer satisfied me there were others just as competent to handle the finances of the town as myself and I turned over the book, papers and tax deeds, belonging to the office to Judge C. W. Whittemore and allowed him to furnish an eight thousand dollar bond and receive a salary of $40 per year and the few perquisites that cluster around the office—mainly being the honored and trusted keeper of large sums of money. This is passed. I now want to be road commissioner. The salary will not be large but the term of office must be long. Ten years at least. I shall expect to receive from the town a fair compensation. Probably $100 per year and I will give the town a bond in a reasonable sum to hold them harmless from any neglect on my part or of those whom I employ—but it must be that I have absolute control of all roads from the time the snow leaves in the spring until the snow comes in the fall. With breaking of the snow I would have nothing to do.

In order to secure my services the town must do this: Give me a lease of office for ten years and furnish me with suitable tools for road building and give me each year the same amount of money that has been expended annually for the past ten years—about $350.

The town must get special legislation permitting the road commissioner to hold office for that length of time. This can easily be done if it is desired.

And again, one thing more must be done—probably requiring special legislation—the whole board of selectmen must not be changed at any one time during my term of office. This has often happened in past years, but it should not be tolerated, and if I'm to be street commissioner and undertake to build the roads for the ten years I must have a guarantee from the town that it will not occur. Each man elected as selectman must serve three years. To get all this I feel that special legislation will be necessary. No town with 600 or more polls should be permitted to elect a new board of officers at will and for that matter no town ought to have that privilege, only one man at a time should be chosen and for three years, and it should be so arranged as to have the affairs of the town in the hands of one officer who has had two years experience. The same scheme as now prevails with County Commissioners.

I understand this district is to send Eugene E. Andrews, of this town, to represent it at Augusta, next winter, and should he get these enabling acts through the legislature, and the town want me for their road commissioner, I'll accept, give bond as herein above set forth and do the best I can for the ten years.

I would engage a competent engineer to go over every mile, establish grades, locate proper culverts, have the drainage problem settled permanently. I would not touch a piece of road that did not endanger life or property, and I would fix it so it would be permanent. I would cease once for ever mending roads, I would build, I would put the work where needed most first. I would make every mile of road so that when I left it they would not be a mud and dirt in it. I would make them so hard that the heaviest teaming would make no impression on them. Dust comes from cut up pulverized mud. If the roads will not cut up during a rain there will not be so much dust, some to be sure, they have that on pavements. Who ever heard of an absurd idea of making roads as we have been following for the past generation? Flat roads, no drainage to speak of, no road bed built so it will run off, dust, dirt, worn out, dirt scooped out of the ditch piled up in the middle of the road every year, making the life of every one who uses them a burden instead of it being a pleasure to drive over our country roads. If they try to round up the road, it will be steep that it is positively dangerous to meet a team, large or small; some pieces so narrow that they remind one of the straight and narrow way without the reward one deserves, for following that path.

I would stop all this. I would not expend a dollar more than is being done now, but what I did put out would be permanent.

I would change that perpetual mud path that bounces over like a drive that would be a pleasure, instead of horror. I would cut down some bills as low as possible without damaging property. I would fix the roadside so that trees would have a chance to grow properly, clean out old dumps, prevent dumping trees in the highway, prevent dumping anything whatever in the highway except at such places as need filling. I would fix the heavy travelled roads, so every man driving anything from a single hitch to a six horse rig could haul twenty-five per cent. more than at present. I would make the roads of Norway so they would be a monument to the wisdom of the town and redound to my glory for ever.

I would make them so we would be more talked about than any town in the State excepting that of the Holy Grail, near Lisbon Falls and all this and more too, and will not expend one dollar more than has been expended in the past ten years.

Give me a trial, just a ten years' trial. What say you? F. W. SANBORN.

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert restoring the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkhams sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until today Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the health of woman's life, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her husband's knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Such women, this advice is "Yours for Health," freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

Children's Corner.

A Brave Dog.
One day Prince, the dog, had just finished his dinner and went out to lie in the sun and had got nearly to sleep, when he heard a noise in the woodshed above. "What is that noise?" he said to himself. "Perhaps I was just getting to sleep and was dreaming."

So he closed his eyes and went back to sleep. Then it came again, the very same noise. He jumped up and began to scratch himself.

"What is that noise? What is that noise?" he said over and over again to himself. "I will just speak to him," so he jumped up and began to bark, "Bow, wow, wow."

"Stop Prince," said the servant as she came out to throw some bones into the back yard, but Prince wouldn't stop. "Bow, wow, wow! Bow, wow, wow!" he said again.

"What is the matter with that dog?" said Mrs. Stevens. "Never saw him act so in my life." But Prince paid no attention but went on barking. After he had barked enough he went out into the back yard to eat the rest of his dinner. He couldn't go to sleep for he was thinking of the noise in the woodshed.

He went into the shed to see if he could hear the noise again. He did not hear it so he thought he would go back to sleep. "No," he said on second thought, "I will go up to see what that noise was."

He had got half way up the stairs when he heard his master's voice, "Prince, Prince, come up here quick, Prince."

Prince started on a run. Who do you think he found? His little master, who had just been up after some eggs and when he was getting ready to get down he slipped on the ladder and was going to fall. Prince jumped and caught him just in time to save him. "How happy I was," was not that a good thing?" Prince was. "Was not that a good thing?"

A Little Girl's Lesson.
Once upon a time in the time of Brownies there lived a little girl. This little girl's name was Ruth. So one day her mother asked her to help her make the beds but she didn't want to and she ran out of doors.

SKIN TORTURES

Thousands of wretched people are miserable—driven almost mad by the terrible itching and burning sensation of Eczema and other skin diseases; many imagine they are suffering from bad blood, when as a matter of fact the blood has nothing to do with it. These awful tortures are caused by little germs that attack the skin externally, which can be rooted out in a hurry, leaving the skin clear, soft and healthy. Such misery now cleared away as surely as the sun shines above. Not merely attempted, but a matter of improvement more or less a temporary relief—but a clearing of it all away absolutely and permanently.

THE D. D. D. PRESCRIPTION

A specific formula, put up in sealed bottles with authentic label, has proven to be the only certain cure for skin diseases. Its record of cures is astonishing, amazing, almost miraculous. It is a liquid, used externally, non-greasy.

Cleansed within one month.

For a number of years my husband has been suffering with a terrible case of eczema. He had doctor after doctor, but they could not cure him. I was told by a friend of the D. D. D. treatment and began using it at once; the first few applications eased the itching, and in a month's time his flesh was as clear as could be.

Yours truly,
MRS. S. J. HEATH,
61 Pine St.

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 17, 1903.

Paris Manufacturing Company.

One of the oldest and most successful wood novelty plants in the State is owned and operated by the Paris Manufacturing Company, at South Paris, with a branch plant at West Paris.

From a very obscure and humble origin this plant has grown to be one of the largest, if not the largest, of its kind in the world. The history of its origin, development and present success, is the history of its founder, the late Henry P. Morton, and a brief sketch of this man is appropriate in any description of the industrial enterprise to which his energies were given for the greater part of his life.

Mr. Morton was born in Corinna, Penobscot county, Maine, in 1839. His father died when the son was only four years old, and his mother being unable to support the three children with whom she was left, Henry was sent to live with a relative at North Auburn, where he remained on the farm until he was twelve years of age. After that he made his home at different places, working for the winter months, attending school during the winter months. Later on he was a student at Hebron Academy and at Kent's Hill. He taught several terms of school with much success, and would have continued his studies but for a serious affection of his eyes.

This impairment of eyesight caused an entire change in his plan of life, and out of what seemed, at the time, a great calamity, was evolved an industry which not only furnished him a congenial life work, but enabled him to establish his sons in a permanent and remunerative business.

Looking about for some occupation whereby to earn a livelihood, he first began making hand rakes and sleds. Being of an inventive turn of mind and naturally active and energetic, he conceived the idea that well made and attractive hand sleds for children might be manufactured and sold at a fair profit in sufficient numbers to yield him at least a living.

The great sled factory, as the immense plant at South Paris is popularly called, originated in 1861 at West Sumner in Mr. Morton's kitchen, he making the sleds by hand, while his wife painted them. The work was done in a crude way at that time, but the sales steadily increased and he was soon obliged to build a shop and hire a man to assist in their manufacture.

In 1869 he moved to Paris Hill, where the industry was carried for many years, but the cost of truckage, both of the raw material and manufactured products, became so large an item of expense that it was necessary to locate nearer the railroad, and in 1883 the business was transferred to South Paris on the line of the Grand Trunk railway, where it is now situated.

In 1886 his first factory building erected at South Paris was destroyed by fire, causing a heavy loss, but a new and larger one was built on the site of the old, and this has been the nucleus around which has grown the extensive plant of today.

This industry has had its financial difficulties and the usual drawbacks attending many great industrial enterprises, but, through the energy and foresight of Mr. Morton it came out successfully and he lived to see the industry placed on a sure and solid foundation. He died in 1900, at the age of 61 years.

In 1901 a large factory building at West Paris was purchased and remodeled, where nearly all the swings, chairs, etc., are now manufactured. Every year since 1891 has seen additions made to one or both plants, until the total floor space in the 21 buildings, comprising the entire plant at both locations, now amounts to 156,027 square feet, or more than three and one-half acres.

At the South Paris plant are located twelve buildings of the following dimensions:

Paint shop, one story, 75 by 130 feet, with 0,750 square feet of floor space.

Store house No. 1, three stories, 50 by 165 feet, with 24,750 square feet of floor space.

Store house No. 2, three stories, 30 by 110 feet, with 9,900 square feet of floor space.

Assembling room, one story, 100 by 100 feet, with 10,000 square feet of floor space.

Machine room No. 1, one story, 100 by 100 feet, with 10,000 square feet of floor space.

Machine room No. 2, one story, 100 by 50 feet, with 5,000 square feet of floor space.

Saw mill, two stories, 120 by 100 feet, with 24,000 square feet of floor space.

Blacksmith shop, one story, 50 by 60 feet, with 3,000 square feet of floor space.

Dry house No. 1, two stories, 50 by 60 feet, with 6,000 square feet of floor space.

Dry house No. 2, two stories, 35 by 55 feet, with 1,925 square feet of floor space.

Lumber shed, one story, 200 by 40 feet, with 8,000 square feet of floor space.

Bending room, one story, 24 by 45 feet, with 1,125 square feet of floor space.

Total floor space, 116,477 square feet; extreme length, 744 feet; horse power, 5000. The buildings and yard room cover about 12 acres of land.

At the West Paris plant are located nine buildings of the following dimensions:

Saw mill, one story, 80 by 80 feet, with 6,400 square feet of floor space.

Machine room, one story, 100 by 65 feet, with 6,500 square feet of floor space.

Assembling room, one story, 100 by 50 feet, with 5,000 square feet of floor space.

Boiler room, one story, 40 by 40 feet, with 1,600 square feet of floor space.

Engine house, one story, 25 by 30 feet, with 750 square feet of floor space.

Machine shop, one story, 60 by 25 feet, with 1,500 square feet of floor space.

Store house No. 1, two stories, 100 by 50 feet, with 10,000 square feet of floor space.

Store house No. 2, three stories, 60 by 30 feet, with 5,400 square feet of floor space.

Lumber shed, one story, 40 by 60 feet, with 2,400 square feet of floor space.

Total floor space, 39,550 square feet; extreme length, 370 feet; horse power, 250. Buildings and lumber yards cover about 10 acres of land.

It will be seen from the foregoing figures that the buildings and yard room of the South Paris plant cover about 12 acres of land, and at the West Paris plant about 10 acres, at a total of 22 acres.

The engine which drives the machinery at the South Paris plant is 500 horse power, and that at the West Paris plant is 250 horse power, a total of 750 horse power. The boilers at the South Paris plant have a total of 1,000 horse power.

In 1897 George R. Morton, son of the originator of the business, was made treasurer of the company, and in 1905, the death of his father, was made treasurer and manager.

Harry A. Morton, another son, was made superintendent in 1901, and the business has since been managed by these two men. There is still another son associated in the business with the two above mentioned.

The officers of the company at the present time are: L. C. Bates, president; George R. Morton, treasurer and manager; George H. Crockett, secretary; and Harry A. Morton, superintendent.

The capital stock of the company is $100,000 and the value of the plant is $280,000. The value of the raw material used last year was $125,000, and the value of the output was $275,000.

The hours of labor are 59 per week, from 5 to 6 p. m. on Saturdays being given in by the management. The wages paid out last year amounted to $25,000. The number of employees is more than 400 men, and the average daily wage is $1.50.

The wages are not high but the work is permanent and is presented to the managers to have orders filled that it is difficult for workmen to obtain a vacation.

The growth and success of the Paris Manufacturing Company is due largely to the character of its output, which has always been at the head. It was ever the aim of the management to get up something that should exceed in style and finish anything of the kind on the market. Here are produced wheel goods, folding goods, lawn mowers, desks, tables, sleds and sleighs. These are the principal products, although many other things are made. The wheel goods consist of children's carts, wagons, etc., including doll carriages. The sleds and sleighs are for children, and the folding goods are for adults.

There were made last year 125,000 sleds, 200,000 carts and wheelbarrows, 5,000 swings, 25,000 step ladders, 15,000 desks, 55,000 tables, and other things in like large numbers.

Probably but few people in the State realize that we have in our midst one of the largest establishments in the world for the manufacture of articles that minister almost entirely to the happiness of children. As much care and skill are exercised in their production as are displayed in the manufacture of any goods for adults.

There is no piece work done in the factory, as the tendency would be to slight the work and turn out as large a quantity as possible, while the intention of the company is to have every piece perfect. At all stages of manufacture the goods are under inspection and any imperfection results in the rejection of the defective part, and the substitution of a perfect piece.

Many of the machines here used are the invention of the superintendent or of some employee of more than ordinary skill and intelligence. It is a characteristic of an American workman to devise some easier and more effective method for doing a certain piece of work, or to evolve some piece of machinery that will do double the work in half the time. There are many examples of the display in the machines that bend the wood, in the wheels, dovetail the boards for carts and wagons, and perform the almost countless other things that enter into the construction of the varied products of this great factory.

Many of the devices for the saving of time and labor have a special application to the particular work done here, while others are of a general nature, applicable to all wood-working plants.

The paint room was one of the most interesting departments visited. The great deal of the painting is done by submerging the sled, cart or other article, in great metal vessels, partly filled with the prepared paint. Most of the varnishing is done in a similar manner. This process is a great saving of time, and also insures a uniform coat of paint or varnish. Of course gold leaf is laid on by hand, and the striping and ornamental painting are also done by hand.

The blacksmith shop is another interesting department. All the welding is done by electricity, by which process one man can do as much work as was formerly done by five. Every department of this great plant is full of interest to the visitor.

Much space is required to store the output of this concern. In one place more than 50,000 sleds are often piled one time. The shipment of sleds usually commences in August and continues unabated until Christmas. By means of spur tracks cars are run alongside the different buildings and the work of loading the cars with the products of the factory goes on continuously.

The products of this plant are sent to all parts of the United States, and some are sent to Europe and to other parts of the world. Among the goods are: John Wamamaker, Philadelphia and New York city, some of whose orders amount to $10,000 at one time; Siegel, Cooper & Company, Chicago, New York city; A. M. Rothschild, Chicago; and C. H. Macey & Company, New York city; Abraham Strauss, Brooklyn, New York; Peabody & Whitney, Jordan, Marsh & Company, Houghton & Dutton, R. H. White & Company, Boston.

The above are only a few out of more than 2,000 customers of this concern. Orders come from California, from Liverpool, England, from Paris, France, and even from far-off Australia.

While the agent of the bureau of statistics was visiting the plant in July, 1905, three cars were being loaded with goods for California to fill an order just received.

The raw material consumed by this plant, with the exception of the paint, iron, steel and other metals, is all taken from the forests of Maine. The product is almost wholly sold out of the State, and the money paid for goods comes back to the State.

The different kinds of wood used are birch, beech, maple, oak, ash, white pine and bass. These different kinds of lumber are cut, for the most part, by men employed by the concern, as the company owns timber lands on which may be found the different kinds of hard and soft woods desired. Much lumber is also bought in small lots from farmers in the vicinity. In this way considerable money is distributed among owners of small timber lots in exchange for hard woods that otherwise would hardly find a market. Last year it required 100 car loads of lumber, besides that cut by the company, to stock this plant.

Maine hard woods are abundant, especially yellow birch, maple and beech, the supply of which is not being so rapidly encroached upon as that of spruce, white birch and poplar. With proper care and the adoption of forestry methods, Maine's lumber supply of all kinds would be adequate and permanent.

Many of the workmen have been connected with the plant for 20 years, some 25, and a few for 30 years. They are mostly Americans. The work requires skill, sobriety and intelligence, and a walk through the plant shows that the above requisites prevail in a very large degree. Most of the married men have saved enough to build homes, and to give their families the comforts of life. The workmen are substantial and valuable citizens. No strikes or labor troubles have ever disturbed the harmony existing between the company and its employees. The proprietors are interested in the welfare of their men and do everything in their power for them, and the men are contented and happy.—(Report of Industries and Labor.

The mother who has acquired the habit of keeping a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saves herself a great amount of uneasiness and anxiety. Cough, colds, and croup, to which children are susceptible are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains nothing injurious and mothers give it to little ones with a feeling of perfect security. Sold by Noyes Drug Store, Shurtleff's, South and West Paris.

Mrs. A. T. Hobbs thought she was doing well, she said she got not less than 13 and from that number to 15 per day from 36 hens, White Wyandottes. If others do better than that she is glad to hear of it.
